A: This tutorial will walk you through the steps to create a classification model. Once your model has been built, you can use it to perform predictions on your data. Once you have enough data to train a model, you can update the kaggle notebook tutorial to incorporate the new data. Steps: Create a new notebook (click "create new notebook" in the bottom right hand corner). Click "import all" in the bottom right hand corner. Click "Download File" in the upper right hand corner. Select "Kaggle Notebook" from the list of files and click "Next" to the right of the text box. Rename the notebook with a useful name, such as "Model Learning". Scroll down to the "Kaggle Notebook Beginner Tutorial". Click "Import notebook" to import the tutorial. Replace all instances of "we" with your username and replace the data sources with your actual data source, however be careful to only change the url for the image files. In the upper right hand corner, click "Copy to clipboard". You can now paste this line anywhere in your notebook. If you want to use your model for predictions, copy the variable, train and test lines. Otherwise, you can just save your notebook as a.ipynb file. Source Q: How to open a C++ project (only header files included) from within Eclipse? I have a C++ project in Eclipse that only contains header files. I'd like to open this project from within Eclipse, but I'm having trouble. For example, if I go File -> Open -> Other... and select my project, I get Cannot open the selected resource [Cannot load the type 'Project1.C#Project1'] The current workspace does not contain the referenced projects. I'm not using Maven, so I don't think this applies. I have a similar problem when trying to make the project appear in the "Add project to workspace" window. I right-click on the project and select "Add to workspace". Open the file (not the project) in the Project Explorer. Right click on the project (doesn't have to be open in the editor) and select "Add to 82157476af
